

Guillaume Delleuse

Guillaume Delleuse, born in 1986 in Marseille, lives and works in Brussels. A visual artist who graduated from the Beaux Arts de Marseille and the ENSP d'Arles, he came to the attention of the Rencontres de la Photographie d'Arles in 2016, where he exhibited the first works in his long-form series soberly entitled Corpus. Guillaume Delleuse shares with Russian avant-gardist Alexander Rodchenko an architectural vision, and with mystical artists a mannerless, timeless aesthetic. "Corpus" as a set of images serving as the basis for a subject of study. "Corpus" is Latin for "body", the artist's obsession. It's not the body that floods our screens for its plasticity, but the body as the transcendent mystery of our being. The artist recognizes in scenes of life the body of Christ on the cross, the skin and its stigmata, recurring motifs in his work. He photographs as he meets people, sometimes using flash, at the risk of provoking a confrontation with his subject. Guillaume Delleuse makes his own prints and lithographs.
